LYING PROSTRATE BETWEEN RAILS

Engine Passed Full Length of Mrs. Thompson's Body.

Coming to Visit Relatives When Locomotive Collided With Their Vehicle.

ONE VICTIM FATALLY HURT.

Lying in the middle of a railroad track while a locomotive engine passed the entire length of her body, was the experience of Mrs. Blanche Thompson, at the crossing of Tennessee street this morning when she and her mother, Mrs. L. Thomas, were thrown from a buggy in a collision with an Illinois Central engine, about 2 o'clock. As the result they are both lying at the residence of Mr. Thompson, 2426 Broadway, seriously, and Mrs. Thompson perhaps fatally, injured.

A light engine struck a buggy in which the women were riding, and reduced it to kindling wood. Mrs. Thompson was thrown between the tracks. Her mother was knocked off the right of way and not badly injured.

Mrs. Thomas resides at Melber Graves county, and was visiting the family of Mr. R. Thompson here. Mrs. Blanche Thompson is a daughter of Mrs. Thomas and a daughter-in-law of Mr. R. Thompson. She resides at Gainesville, Tex., where her husband is in business. This morning at 1:30 o'clock the latter arrived in the city to visit relatives and was met at the depot by R. Thompson and family. Mr. Thompson, wife and daughter, and two friends rode in a surrey and Mrs. Thomas in a runabout. The daughter took a seat in the runabout with her mother and the party, the surrey in advance started home.

When the first crossing at Tennessee street was reached the surrey started across. It passed in safety, but the runabout was struck by an engine, which the occupants of the vehicle did not see. The engine, the same that pulled the fast passenger train from Memphis, was No. 236, in charge of Engineer Pat Grogan and Fireman Ed Lewis. It was backing down the lead to the shops and on account of the engineer being on the west side and the buggies on the east, he could not see. He was running slowly, he claims, and stopped the length of his engine, after the buggy was struck.

Physicians were summoned and the two injured women carried to Mr. Thompson's residence. An examination showed Mrs. Thomas to have escaped with cuts and bruises about the face, shoulders and arms. No bones were broken. She was thrown out of the way of the engine.

Mrs. Thompson, the daughter, was probably fatally injured. She claims she was thrown between the rails and that the engine passed its entire length over her. She is injured in the chest and has severe bruises and cut on the face and the upper part of her body. No bones were broken.

The women stated that they did not see the engine and did not notice if any bell was rung or warning whistle blown. The party in the surrey saw the engine after the tracks were crossed, but not in time to give warning to the mother and daughter behind. The runabout was on the track when the danger was first realized.

Engineer Grogan is a careful engineer, one of the best on the system, and stated that he was running slowly and did not see or know that the buggies were near until he saw the surrey pass. He applied brakes and the crash followed.

Mrs. Thompson is suffering a depression of the skull, and the doctors fear internal injuries. The mother is resting well, suffering more from the shock than bodily injury.

There is no watchman stationed at Tennessee street at night.

PEORIA SCHOOL BOARD OUSTED

City Council Declares Every Seat Vacant.

Peoria, Ill., July 12.—The city council tonight declared every seat on the board of school inspectors vacant and called a special election for August 3 to elect an entire new board. The action follows on the judgment in the circuit court ousting the eight hold-over members of the board and in effect declaring the method of election of the eight new members illegal.

By the consent of the people of Paducah, The Sun has the largest circulation in the city and county. The average for June was 4072 a day.

ZION CITY'S BAND FAILS; QUITTS
Unable to Succeed in Open-Air Concerts in North Shore Towns.

Chicago, July 12.—After a fruitless attempt to work up an open-air summer concert business in cities along the north shore, including Racine, Kenosha, Waukegan and Lake Forest, the Zion City band has disbanded. Its members are seeking work in factories. The band met with opposition from local bands in some of the cities and also from labor unions, who are opposed to Zionites as non-unionists.

IN THE THAW CASE.

Counsel Receive Communications
From All Sorts and Conditions of Chorus Girls.

New York, July 12.—Possibly no case in the history of American jurisprudence has brought to the front a greater number and variety of cranks as the killing of Stanford White by Harry Thaw. Every person directly or indirectly interested has been inundated by letters from persons professing to have knowledge or advice that they are willing to sell for a consideration.

"I am putting aside material that would fill a book after this case is over," said Terrence J. McMannus, one of Thaw's counsel, yesterday. "I am convinced that almost every show girl and every giddy young creature with less intangible means of support is now boasting of the attention that Mr. White paid to her in his lifetime and every man to whom they tell their story expects to realize some cash by offering to sell it to us. The most absurd yarns are being received, and we investigate the most promising."

Three-Year-Old Child Burned.

Cries of Child Attracted Parents But She Was Stung a Hundred or More Times.

Little Miss Katherine McKnight, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes McKnight, who are spending the summer with W. H. Sanders in Arcadia, played with honey-bees to her disfigurement.

Tuesday afternoon about 6 o'clock the little maid started on a walk in the large grounds about the house, when she became tired and seeing some boxes, which afterwards proved to be hives, seated herself on one of them. The bees with their usual promptness rushed out and began stinging the little girl. She screamed and her parents began to search for her, but the hives were hidden by some bushes and they searched several minutes before they found her. When found the bees were stinging the little one fiercely.

She was carried to the house and a physician called who found the bees had stung her several hundred times. The fright and stings made her sick, but today she has nearly recovered.

Custody by Court.

Albert Winfrey, the well known ball player and bartender, who was presented in the police court for the alleged theft of a watch from a companion, was dismissed, the warrant being filed away. There was no evidence against Winfrey other than that he was one of the several men in a wrestling match after which the watch was discovered to be missing.

Tom Sanders, officer for the Humane society, took up a horse and buggy last night and the owner can secure his property by calling at the Charles Clark livery stable. The horse was left standing in front of the McPherson drug store for several hours last night. The animal is a bay mare.

RICH LEPER FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Mexican Millionaire on Special Train
En Route to Europe.

El Paso Tex., July 12.—Traveling in a special train because his disease prohibits him from securing accommodations with other passengers, J. M. Bringas, a millionaire of Guayamas, Mexico, passed through El Paso today en route to Europe seeking relief from leprosy. He is not expected to live long. To prolong his life he will consult European specialists, those of his own country having failed to help him. To pass through Arizona and New Mexico he had to make special arrangements with the marine hospital service, representatives of which traveled on his train. Bringas' family is with him.

He also said there should be an organization to turn out trained men to supply the wastage of war.

The system is patterned after the principle of the Turkish bath, and Director Coplin says the cures effected have been in hundreds of instances truly marvelous.

WRECKED STEAMER BURNS NEAR BANK

Quincy Strikes Shore on the Upper Mississippi.

Two Hundred Passengers Have Narrow Escape and But One Drowning Is Known.

ACCIDENT IN THE DARKNESS.

La Crosse, Wis., July 12.—Nearly all the 200 passengers on the steamer Quincy at 10:30 o'clock last night, narrowly escaped death when the big packet struck the bank in the dark near Trempealeau, Wis., turned half over and then caught fire.

It is believed that the majority of the passengers were saved and only one drowning is definitely known, that of an infant which was dashed from its mother's arms.

At 1:20 this morning a belated train brought 60 passengers who were on the boat to this city.

About 10:30 the steamer plying up the river struck a bank, at the time it is said the boat carried no searchlight.

One passenger says he saw a babe washed overboard from its mother's arms. The boat was sinking though not in deep water.

The steamer caught fire immediately after the collision with the bank. Amid the crashing of timbers, with the boat on its side, the life-boats were got out and the passengers were taken off before the flames gained any considerable headway. Whether or not all the passengers were saved, it is impossible to ascertain.

Work of Rescue.

Rescue work was effectively done by the colored roustabouts of the craft. When it became apparent that the boat would have to be abandoned, the steamer was forced onto the bank by powerful engines, the prow literally creeping up the steep bank.

Tied to a tree, the burning steamer was held while the roustabouts took the people off the stern in boats.

Others jumped off into the dark, and it was not until half the people were off that the powerful searchlight was put into running order, making the scene as light as day.

GROSS NEGLIGENCE IS CHARGED.

Lacrosse, Wis., July 12.—Rescued passengers from the steamer Quincy say the pilot missed the main channel. The accident occurred in a slough, passengers claim, through the gross negligence of the pilot. The boat struck the shore, knocking a hole in the hull, then backed into deep water. The shock, awoke the passengers, most of whom had retired. Negro roustabouts took possession of life preservers. Passengers were landed with difficulty in small boats. Officers declare all the 250 passengers were saved.

ALL SUMMER

Garfield Must Toil While Others Are On Vacation.

Washington, July 12.—Sticking unflinchingly at his post, while other officials are enjoying ocean baths and mountain breezes, Commissioner Garfield, of the bureau of corporations, department of commerce and labor, keeps pounding away at the trusts. With a half dozen investigations into the principal industries of the United States, representing investments of billions of dollars under way, he will work through the summer. Oil, steel, tobacco, sugar, coal and lumber trusts are receiving his particular attention.

PAYS FOR FOOD SOLDIERS TOOK

Colonel Moriarty of the Seventh
Settles for Raid on Cafe.

Springfield, Ill., July 12.—Rather than have any litigation, Colonel Daniel Moriarty, commander of the Seventh Regiment, now at Camp Lincoln, today reimbursed James P. Ward, restaurant keeper of Lincoln, for the food taken from the latter's place by soldiers of the regiment who made a raid on the place while en route to Camp Lincoln. It was intensely hot at Camp Lincoln today, but there were no prostrations.

Kimball in the Lead.

Frankfort, Ky., July 12.—Returns from the various conventions in the Seventh congressional district show Hon. W. P. Kimball of Lexington in the lead for the Democratic nomination for Congress next year. The lead is the successor of Hon. South Trimble.

Generally fair tonight and Friday slightly cooler. The highest temperature reached yesterday was 90 and the lowest reached today was 71.

PLANS STEEL RIVER STEAMERS

St. Louis Man Seeks Passenger
Traffic on the Mississippi.

St. Louis, July 12.—Joseph Clark, who is the executive head of several electric railroads in Northern Missouri, is organizing a company to operate steel passenger steamers on the Mississippi river between St. Louis and New Orleans and between St. Louis and St. Paul. Mr. Clark's plan is to build nine steel hull steamboats of a new design. Each vessel will cost without equipment about $100,000.

SMILING THOMAS

IS UP AGAINST IT IN NATIONAL POLITICS.

Chairman of Democratic Committee and French Lick Magnate
Must Be Retired.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12.—There are those who, standing at a distance and looking down toward French Lick, and then glancing in the direction of New York and other seats of Democracy, say without prejudice that one Thomas Taggart, of the everlasting smile and suave manner, has lost his rabbi's foot and is "up against it" sure enough. And this is all because of the fact that in the public mind, Taggart is closely associated with a Monte Carlo—not a little Monte Carlo where no harm has been done and where fortunes have been lost but few made.

Already the state Democratic press has joined the New York World in demanding that he resign. As Taggart has held a public office of some kind or another ever since he quit splitting sandwiches at the Union Station 25 years ago, and has never resigned once, it is not likely that he will resign now. It will just be a turn-down—freeze-out. Democrats, gold and silver Democrats, will not be sorry, as the real leaders, the men who look ahead, the "track walkers," know it will be the best thing that could happen to the Democratic party.

GETTING OLD

IS BLACKBURN'S EXCUSE FOR REFUSING THE RACE.

Senator Foresees Hard Primary Contest and Harder Struggle for Election.

Washington, July 12.—Senator Blackburn's close friends here do not believe that he will be a candidate for governor this year. Their reason for holding this opinion is found in a conversation the senior senator had with one of his intimate friends just before leaving here for the summer. The senator was asked what his intention was regarding the governorship.

"I do not expect to run for governor at the primaries this year or the regular election a year hence," Mr. Blackburn replied. "I am not as young as I used to be, and I do not feel equal to making the fight. If I had any ambition to be governor I would have to start to work at once and campaign continuously for four months before the primaries. Then, if successful, the contest will be only begun. The campaign between the Democratic nominee and the Republican candidate for governor next year will be hot. This will mean another year's hard work."

NO OPPOSITION FOR BENNETT.

He Will Receive Republican Nomination for Congress in the Ninth.

Maysville, Ky., July 12.—The Ninth district congressional Republican committee met at Greenup yesterday and selected Ashland as the place and August 15 the time to hold the convention to nominate a candidate for Congress. J. B. Bennett, the incumbent, will be nominated without opposition.

Curt Jett on Stand Surprises
The Prosecution.

Mose Feltner Tells How He Was Induced to Leave the Country
By Hargis.

ADMISSION HURTS DEFENSE.

Beautyville, Ky., July 12.—For the first time since the assassination of J. B. Marcum, three years ago, Curt Jett, the self-confessed murderer, took the witness-stand and told of the manner in which he killed Marcum. Jett was perfectly cool and collected as he told his remarkable story of assassination, in which he was the central figure, Jett said Marcum had prosecuted him, and was his bitter enemy, and that he killed him. He said he secured the pistol from Selden Hargis several months before the murder, while early today he told attorneys he had been given the pistol the day before by Ed Callahan, while they were in the corridor of the court-house.

The attitude of Jett on the witness stand was such as to bear out the statement made by Attorney Young today, that Jett wanted to repudiate his confession and swear for the defense.

Much excitement prevailed after Jett

The Hoosiers fresh from Cairo with three straights to their credit, and smiling the smile of confidence, pure and simple, walked onto the reservation at Wallace park yesterday to have a go with the Indians. The Indians showed their appreciation of the invasion by the hardest and most unmerciful drubbing the Hoosiers have gotten this season. Eddie Kolt was surprised, "Rube" Whitley was surprised even more than his chief and the fans in the grand-stand were the most surprised of all. They expected a battle, but the Hoosiers seemed incapable of even making it interesting for the Indians.

Such stick work had not been seen on the reservation before this season. Seventeen healthy bingles, one of them a home run and another a double, were stacked up against "Rube" Whitley, he of American league fame, and the Mighty "Rube" hated it, too. He took his medicine gracefully, however, and played the game through.

Whitley was assisted in the Indians' score-making by his teammates who seemed to be all thumbs. The ball was fumbled, thrown wild, juggled and everything done with it but the proper thing. It became such a habit with the Indians to hit that the ball batted at such a thing as a ground out, and once when Pat Downing hit down the first sack line with Wilkinson standing back of the bag, the ball hit the bag and rolled into the field. Downing made the sack safe. It was counted a hit.

The poor little ball finally got so ashamed of itself that it jumped from the ground into the grand-stand netting and tried to hide itself. It was rescued and used a few innings more until the agony of one of the greatest baseball comedy of errors ever witnessed here was ended.

The Hoosiers made one earned run and five hits. Two of the hits were secured in the ninth inning after two men were out, and it was here that the tally was made. Moran hit for three sacks and scored on Barbour's single.

Mattie Matisson went wild because the Hoosiers were not subjected to the mortification of a shut-out.

The Indians hit the ball all over the field ran bases like fleas, and played an all around star game. The attendance was a little better than usual and the game was interesting, because of the big score and the streak of batting fire the Indians struck.

Cairo Breaks Into Game.

Cairo, Ill., July 12.—Cairo broke the hoodoo yesterday by taking a 14-inning game from Danville. The players fought hard and the fielding was sensational. Cairo made ten hits but was unsuccessful in bunching. Seven errors to Danville assisted the locals greatly in taking the game.

The score R H E
Cairo 3 10 5
Danville 2 4 7

Batteries—Wagner and Searies; Selby, Johnson and Ott.

Hostlers Take a Game.

Jacksonville, Ill., July 12.—The Hostlers yesterday defeated the locals in a closely played game. Both pitchers did good work, but McCarthy proved too much for the Belts.

The score: R H E
Jacksonville 3 8 4
Mattoon 4 4 3

Batteries—Fox and Belt; McCarthy and Johnson.

A Few Reminders.

"Red" Perry is playing a star game now and his base running especially has been good. Perry yesterday had two stolen bases and the day before he twice stole clear around the diamond. Yesterday he was up six times, got five hits, one put out, and one assist without an error.

Henry Wetzel is hitting and fielding like a field.

Cooper has his eye on the ball again and is knocking them all over the field.

Moran seems to be infallible hitter. Miller could not fool him once yesterday.

The Hoosiers found Miller the hardest proposition in the league. The big boy had them all going yesterday, except Moran, who just would have that score.

Moran is a native of Vincennes. He is leading the league in hitting and is one of the surest fielders in the league.

Eddie Kolt is not wearing the "smile that won't come off" today.

The fans are now attending the park better. The warning the management gave local baseball enthusiasts seemed to have done some good. It is either to patronize the game or suffer baseball to die here.

Groh intended getting into the game again today but yesterday afternoon while under the hot shower bath in the club room, burst a blood vessel in his left arm and will not be able to go in before Saturday.

Vincennes was after Quigley who is now playing second sack for the Indians.

Lee Lemon, formerly catcher for the Hoosiers, has been released by the Decatur, Three I league, team.

Qulessier, catcher for Danville, has been released. He is a better man than Shaw, Paducah fans think.

Brahic and Tadlock will pitch today's double header for the Indians, and Perdue will go in the first game against Brahic.

Tomorrow is Ladies' Day.

The Indians' Averages.

The averages of Kitty league players up until July 1 have been compiled and mailed over the circuit. "Deetle" Moran, of Vincennes, still leads the league in batting, his average being .322.

The following are the averages of Paducah players:

The dark clouds of uncertainty that have been hanging over the Cairo baseball team are rolling away and the future of the local club is hourly growing brighter. The baseball enthusiasts are beginning to show that they have no quitters blood in them and that instead warm, red sporting blood flows in their veins. The sale of tickets is growing more hopeful each day and the directors of the association will, it is understood, soon begin to solicit subscriptions for funds with which it will be necessary to keep the club in existence. Manager Eichenberger last night said: "Cairo is going to stick for the big show and a lot of towns that have been giving Cairo the laugh because of its threatened financial failure will be greatly surprised when we canter off with the pennant at the end of the season."

The gauge at the foot of Broadway registered a stage of 6.3 this morning, a fall of 0.4 in the last 24 hours. Weather clear. Business already has been perceptibly weakened at the wharf by the low water. The withdrawal from the trade of the large Lee boats is the largest factor, and next week will see more of the regular packets replaced by smaller boats, which means smaller business. There has been no rainfall here this month.

The Lizzie B. Archibald passed with a tow of empties this morning. The John Hopkins was the regular Evansville packet this morning. The Dick Fowler left on time this morning for Cairo and way points returning tonight about 8 o'clock. The Kentucky will be due out of the Tennessee river tonight.

The Saltillo left St. Louis last night and will arrive here Friday morning on the way to the Tennessee river. The St. Louis-Tennessee river packets probably will have a good stage of water until September 1.

The Savannah will be due out of the Tennessee river this afternoon on the return trip to St. Louis.

The Peters Lee arrived at 7 o'clock this morning from Cincinnati on the rush to Memphis ahead of the coming of low water. As it was the Peters Lee barely did get through, finding the water especially shallow just below Golconda. The freight and passenger business was necessarily small. The Lee boats have been withdrawn from the Ohio river trade until fall and probably will go on docks or ways for repairs.

The Georgia Lee may take the place of the Sun in the Mississippi river trade.

At the present rate of falling, the Joe Fowler and the John Hopkins in the Evansville-Paducah trade, will have to quit next week. In that event the Henry Harley and the Dunbar will assume their runs. The Henry Harley is now in the upper Cumberland and will arrive here this week. The Dunbar is now in the Tennessee river trade but will probably be succeeded by the Dudley. A swelling drew one leg up, making it shorter by a foot than its mate. The operation was a success and the attorney will be out in a few weeks, it is thought.

Navigation in the Cumberland will not be kept up much longer. At present the Dunbar can get only to Clarksville, and probably not that far next week. The Buttoff, whose place the Dunbar is filling, unless chartered out will lie up until a rise.

The Fannie Wallace was let off the dry docks yesterday and the Harry H. from Vicksburg was raised out.

The United States boat, Lookout, is expected to be finished today and Woman Beaten to Death and Body Set on Fire.

Suspect Under Arrest Supposed to Be Man With Her When She Cashed Draft.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12.—Robbery is believed to have been the motive of the brutal murder of Miss Millie Ellison, of Elsworth Wis., who was attacked while in her room in a hotel here.

The woman is known to have had $2,000 on her person, having cashed a draft for that amount at one of the banks during the day. When she appeared at the bank to cash the order which was drawn on an institution in her home town, she was accompanied by a man who closely answers the description of the suspect now under arrest at Elroy, Wis.

His name is N. M. Riggs, a resident of Minneapolis and an engineer on the Northwestern. He met Miss Ellison some ten years ago when she was employed in a hotel at the end of his run.

A brother of the dead woman, now here, tells the following story regarding the man under arrest at Elroy:

"My sister sold out her millinery business in Elsworth. It was the understanding of the family that she was on her wedding trip.

"She took all her money and negotiable papers, with her at the time she left home. The amount is at least $3,000 and it may have been as much as $6,000."

The woman when found had two gaping wounds in her head and practically every inch of skin on her body was burned off.

From the appearance of the woman and the room in which she was found, it is plain that she was beaten into insensibility with a hammer and left for dead. Her assailant then laid her body on a couch and spreading a quantity of wood alcohol over her and the couch set fire to it with evident intention of setting fire to the entire hotel in order to cover up his crime.

NEWS OF KENTUCKY

Distressing Tragedy.

Richmond, Ky., July 12.—Tom Boggie, a prominent farmer living just over the Estill county line from College Hill, has for some time been missing things from his residence and determined to catch the guilty parties. He placed a gun just in front of the door and tied a string at one end to the trigger of the gun and the other to the door knob so that when the door opened the gun would be discharged. Mr. Boggie, who had been away from home, returned in the morning to find John Woods, aged twenty-three, the son of William Woods, a prominent citizen of Estill county, lying dead in front of his door with his head nearly blown off.

PLANS FOR BRIDGE AT FOURTH STREET

A Thirty-Six Foot Structure Over Island Creek.

Board of Public Works and Committee of General Council Agree to Push Work.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED.

A 36-foot bridge with a 26-foot driveway in the center and a 5-foot pedestrian passage way on each side, will be built over Island creek to replace the old bridge on Fourth street. The decision was reached at a meeting of the board of public works and the joint public improvement committee yesterday afternoon, and City Engineer L. A. Washington was instructed to proceed at once with the plans. All haste possible to use will be exercised in arranging the preliminaries.

All market benches were reported to the board of public works reengaged except two, and President Rinkliffe was instructed to confer with Market Master Frank Smedley relative to renting them.

The matter of defective surface water drainage at Twenty-third and Jefferson streets was deferred, pending a decision of the solicitor relative to fixing the responsibility for sewers, whether on the property owner or city.

A small platform was ordered torn from the Friedman & Kehler store on Jefferson and Second streets. It was built to facilitate loading of wagons, but is an obstruction of the pavement.

The board set Tuesday, July 17, as the date for testing street flushing machines. There are two St. Louis firms with flushers here.

The street department was ordered to sprinkle the street on Broadway from Fountain avenue to Twenty-fifth street to lay the dust during the progress of the funeral procession from the Ed P. Noble residence to the cemetery.

Cut off water boxes are reported too high in some places on the pavements. They were ordered cut down. People stub their toes and fall because of these projections above the pavement, and this action is taken to prevent damage suits.

The street department was ordered to remove debris from Jefferson street where pavements are to be built.

The street inspector was ordered to seal a fine cap at the sewerage pump house.

The contract made with Thomas Bridges Sons & company for constructing a culvert on Caldwell avenue near the depot, was ratified. Work will begin at once.

The board ordered a communication filed with the legislative boards urging the condemnation of property owned by W. F. Bradshaw, Sr., and George Bernhard for pavements on West Broadway from the hospital on Fountain avenue. Other residents have dedicated property.

Resolutions of Respect.

Resolutions of respect to the late E. P. Noble, formerly president of the board of public works, were drafted. They read as follows:

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to terminate the life and career of our late co-worker and friend, Edmund P. Noble, whose death occurred in this city July 10, 1906; therefore be it

"Resolved: By the board of public works of Paducah that in the death of Mr. Noble the city has lost an honored and valuable citizen; one whose labors as a member and the presiding officer of this board, emphasized his worth to our beautiful and progressive city, in which he always manifested such a delight and pride; that by his kind, considerate and impartial course, he enjoyed the full confidence and esteem of his official associates, who, in common with the entire community, deplore his death. And though his active connection with this board had been severed some weeks ago by his resignation, yet we felt that he was still a member for he always displayed a keen interest in public affairs even up to the time he was taken ill. Be it further

"Resolved: That while many public officials of the land have been, and are, criticised, this board can and does say that his official life, like his private life, was above reproach and free from all criticism. In all of his acts he was governed by a strict fidelity to duty as an official, and without exception enjoyed the utmost confidence and esteem of all with whom he came in contact; making a faithful, honest and conscientious officer. As a member of the board he exercised a wise and progressive spirit, and was largely instrumental in laying a broad foundation to meet the growth of the city in the years to come. By his death the city also loses one whose aim in life was to do good for his

"Who is responsible for this state of affairs? Did the stockyards novel have much to do with it?" Mr. Morris was asked.

"The book--nothing," exclaimed the packer. "There is only one man who read the book."

"Do you mean President Roosevelt?"

"Well, you know," returned Mr. Morris, "that book didn't have anything to do with it."

Want Thorough Inspection.

At the meeting of the Butchers' association last night the question of impartial inspection of meat was discussed.

The butchers on market believe that all meat sold, no where or by whom, in the city, should be inspected both before and after slaughtering.

Daily Thought.

"Skill is a handle without which no tool is serviceable."

Only this week is left in which to qualify for one of the prizes offered by the Paducah Evening Sun for the prettiest yards in the different wards and the prettiest yard in Paducah. Beginning next Monday Mayor Yeiser Dr. D. G. Murrell, president of the board of park commissioners, and Dr. J. Q. A. Taylor of the board of public works, will make an inspection over all the residence streets in the city and decide which yards are entitled to the prizes. Much interest has been taken in the contest, a surprising response, considering this is the first year the scheme was ever tried in Paducah, and it reflects the refinement of the citizens in general. The Sun has in this contest but one object, to stimulate a sense of civic pride in our people, and to bring about the day of the "city beautiful." In many cities civic improvement associations have met with great success and there is hope that before another year rolls around Paducah will have such an organization, including in its membership a majority of the householders.

In speaking of the wave of ethical reform that has swept over the country, Mr. Bryan fails to realize that it had its inception in the precept and example of President Roosevelt, whose whole career and administration have stood out for clean living and the "square deal." Mr. Bryan's ideas are correct. He is the philosopher. Mr. Roosevelt is the practical man of affairs, living and executing those ideals. Mr. Bryan's speech dwells in the realm of figurative language, he knows no other. While he is talking President Roosevelt is doing.

Lexington papers are accusing the Louisville Commercial club of mendacity in connection with the struggle between the two cities for the permanent state fair. They assert that the Commercial club representatives a year ago visited Lexington and declared the blue grass capital an ideal location for the institution. Perhaps so but since the Commercial club is a Louisville organization, its reputation will not be tarnished nor its usefulness impaired, if it succeeds in landing the state fair.

If London Punch contained a humorous article about the Longworths, it simply demonstrates the growth of American influence in England, and the subjects of the witicism should feel distinguished by having induced that dignified, rather sombre, publication to perpetrate its first joke.

Angry Mob With Bloodhounds on the Trail of Men Responsible for Three Deaths.

INCENDIARIES BURN UP TOWN.

Petersburg, Ind., July 12.—A wreck of the Southern railway freight train eight miles from here this morning resulted in the loss of three lives and thousands of dollars worth of property. An engine ran into a spiked switch and toppled over. The entire train left the track, demolishing many cars and wrecking the engine. The engineer and fireman were badly scalded and died in a few minutes. Brakeman Capehart had his leg cut off and died an hour later. Two other members of the crew are probably fatally injured.

Investigation showed the other end of the switch also spiked, so as to get either the east or west bound train.

Bloodhounds and an angry mob are on the trail of the miscreants. Ill-feeling against the railroad company is supposed to have been the motive.

Incendiaries Burn Town.
Booneville, Ind., July 12.—Dannville, having a population of a thousand, almost was totally destroyed by fire this morning. Twenty-five buildings were destroyed, causing an estimated loss of $200,000. It is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

"Whereas, in the death of Mr. Ed. P. Noble, the Manufacturers and Merchants, as well as the citizens of Paducah in general, have sustained an irreparable loss, and

"Whereas, Mr. Noble during his life as a merchant, as a citizen and as public officer, rendered such excellent services to the community, and

"Whereas, his high conception of private citizenship, his exalted idea of public service, was an example worthy of the emulation of all good citizens; therefore be it

"Resolved, that we deplore the loss to the community of this worthy citizen and be it further resolved that we extend to his family our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement and cherish the hope that the sympathetic feeling we all have toward the deceased will tend to be a soothing balm for their wounded hearts; and be it further

London Officials Investigate Affairs of Late Charles Cheston.

London, July 12.—Official and other inquiries are being made regarding the affairs of Charles Cheston, a solicitor who died in May last after having lost, it is alleged, between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 of his client's money. The main losses affect five or six persons, including Lord Amherst of Hackney. It was at first thought he was practically ruined, but he is not the hardest hit. The heaviest loser is said to be a woman, name unknown, who is out $500,000.

It is alleged that Cheston's defalcations extended over several years and were largely the outcome of speculation in the stock exchange.

NINE FOOT STAGE SOURCE TO MOUTH

Meaning of Full Plans of Rivers and Harbors Committee.

Big Chicago Ship Canal Project Will Have to Await Disposition of Prior Claims.

FEDERAL PAUPER STATISTICS.

Washington, July 12.—The prospect of the ultimate consummation of the nine-foot project for the Ohio river was never brighter than it is at this time. The long-continued agitation in favor of a channel that depth from Pittsburg to Cairo has made an impression upon the house committee on rivers and harbors which gives promise of early and satisfactory results.

The committee did a great deal of preliminary work during the last session, and will be able to draft a new bill in time for introduction before the holiday recess. Several tentative conclusions have already been reached by the committee, and one of them concerns the improvement of the Ohio river.

Congress has already authorized the construction of locks and dams which, when completed, will provide a nine-foot depth for a distance of thirty miles below Pittsburg, and the committee has resolved that hereafter, whenever provision is made for the extension of this lock and dam system, it will be with a view of carrying the nine-foot channel further down the stream.

In other words, the committee seems to have made up its mind that the government is now already committed to the nine-foot project, and will waste no more money in building works which will provide only for a six-foot channel.

Quarantine for Fruit Vessels.

Washington, July 12.—Secretary Shaw has amended the quarantine regulations so as to allow fruit vessels from ports where yellow fever is known to exist to enter the ports of the United States without detention. Vessels are allowed the alternative of remaining out of the United States ports until five days from the time of leaving the infected port have elapsed or of making a change of crew.

Snag for Chicago Ship Canal.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Chicago's efforts to get the drainage canal made a ship canal, connecting the great lakes and the Mississippi river, will meet great opposition next winter from Chairman Burton, of the rivers and harbors committee of the house. As committee now stands no appropriation for that purpose will have a place in next winter's bill. Improvements that have long been hanging fire must be cleaned up before it can be seriously considered.

Pauper Statistics.

Washington, July 12.—According to a report issued by the census bureau today, there were in the United States in 1904, 163,176 persons in alm houses, and of these 111,817 were males.

Although the number of alm houses paupers is increasing, the increase has not kept pace with the growth of population, and consequently the ratio of alm houses paupers to population is decreasing. In 1880 it was 132 per 100,000 of population; it decreased to 117 in 1890, and to 101 in 1903. Of the paupers, 48 per cent, had been laborers and servants, 19 per cent, engaged in manufacturing and mechanical industries, and 24 per cent, occupied with agriculture, transportation and other outdoor pursuits. More than three-fourths of the female paupers had been servants.

GENERAL FIGHT; ONE CASUALTY

O'Bryan's Addition Furnishes a Sensation.

One Man Badly Beaten Up, and Pistol Shots Echo Through Streets at Night.

WIND UP IN THE POLICE COURT.

A free-for-all fight, in which three men and two women participated, broke the stillness of night in O'Bryan's west end addition just east of the Illinois Central union station this morning about 3 o'clock. A pistol, knife and fists were the weapons, and the fight was fast and furious while it lasted. One man, Sherman Mills, was badly used, but no one seriously injured. The principals were Fannie Wilson, a well known character, Thelma Chesterfield, equally notorious, Jessie Ullman, another mat, and Sherman Mills, the latter a bartender, who has often been mixed up in affairs in which the Wilson woman centered.

Last night the two women who reside in the O'Bryan addition went to Wallace park and met Ullman and friend, it is said. When they returned home the men are alleged to have accompanied them. Mills showed up at an early hour this morning and ordered both of them away from the house. A quarrel ensued and words brought on a fight.

It is alleged that somebody fired two shots from pistol at Mills. In the melee Mills was struck or cut over the eye and badly used generally. One eye was closed and his shirt was soaking with blood when he 'phoned for policemen from the union depot.

Patrolmen Alexander and Terrell investigated the case and arrested all participants in the fight.

Ullman Held Under Bond.

This morning the three men were presented for a breach of peace in police court and the evidence was heard. The evidence was:

Mills ordered Ullman and his companion from the house. He had an open knife when he appeared in the house and advanced threateningly. Ullman started for him and received a slight cut on the head. He wrestled with Mills and succeeded in getting the knife away. Ullman then began to use the knife and cut Mills on the right side several times and in the head. Mills ran as did Ullman's companion. Ullman secured a pistol and followed Mills into the open air. Mills continued running after leaving the house and Ullman fired two shots. Judge Puryear held Ullman for malicious shooting with intent to kill and he gave bond in the sum of $300. The other witnesses in the case were all recognized to appear on the first day of September to testify before the grand jury.

To Raise $500,000.

At a meeting of the directors of the Baptist Educational society of Kentucky, in Louisville last night, it was determined to make an effort to raise $500,000 for the purpose of developing the schools and colleges of that denomination in the state.

"Honesty isn't the best policy," he went on; "it's the only one. The vain fool that gets it into his head—or shall I say her head? No? Well, no offense, I assure you—his head, then, that he's smarter than a world full of experience, ought to be put in jail—for his own protection; he's too big a jay to be left out of doors.

For 5,000 years, more or less, the world has been putting people like him behind bars, where they can't make asses of themselves. Yet each year, and every day and every hour, a new ninny is born who fancies he's cleverer than all his predecessors put together.

Talk about suckers! Why, they're giants of intellect compared to the mentally lissiced that 5,000 years of experience can't teach. When the criminal-clown's turn comes, he hops, skips and jumps into the ring with the old, old gag. He thinks it's new, because he himself is so fresh and green. "Here I am again," he yells, "the fellow that'll do you up. Others have tried it. They're dead, in jail or under jail-yards. But me—just watch me!" We do, and after a little we put him with his mates and a keeper in a barred kindergarten where fools that can't learn, little moral cripples of both sexes, my dear, belong. Bah!" He puffed out the smoke, throwing his head back, in a cloud toward the ceiling.

I sprang from my seat and faced him. I was tingling all through. I didn't care a rap what became of me for just that minute. I forgot about Tom. I prayed that the cop wouldn't come for a minute yet—but only that I might answer him.

"You're mighty smart, ain't you? You can sit back here and sneer at me, can't you? And feel so big and smart and triumphant!" What've you done but catch a girl at her first bungling job! It makes you feel awfully cocky, don't it? "What a big man am I! Bah!" I blew the smoke up toward the ceiling from my mouth, with just that satisfied gall that he had had; or rather, I pretended to. He let down the front legs of his chair and began to stare at me.

"And you don't know it all, Mr. Manager, not you. Your clown-epinal don't jump into the ring because he's so full of fun he can't stay out. He goes in for the same reason the real clown does—because he gets hungry and thirsty and sleepy and tired like other men, and he's got to fill his stomach and cover his back and get a place to sleep. And it's because your kind gets too much, that my kind gets so little it has to piece it out with this sort of thing. No, you don't know it quite all.

"There's a girl named Nancy Olden that could tell you a lot, smart as you are. She could show you the inside of the Cruelty, where she was put so young she never knew that children had mothers and fathers, till a red-haired girl named Mag Monahan told her; and then she was mighty glad she hadn't any. She thought that all little girls were bloodless and dirty, and all little boys were filthy and had black purple marks where their fathers had tried to gouge out their eyes. She thought all women were like the matron who came with a visitor up to the bare room, where we played without toys—the new, dirty, newly-bruised ones of us, and the old, clean, healing ones of us—and said: 'Here, chicks, is a lady who's come to see you. Tell her how happy you are here.' Then Mag's freckled little face, her finger in her mouth, looked up like this. She was always afraid it might be her mother come for her. And the crippled boy jerked himself this way—I used to mimic him, and he'd laugh with the rest of them—over the bare floor. He always hoped for a penny. Sometimes he even got it.

"And the boy with the gouged eye—he would hold his pants up like this. He had just come in, and there was nothing to fit him. And he'd put his other hand over his bad eye and blink up at her like this. And the little boy—oh! ha! ha! ha!—you ought to have seen that littlest boy. He was in skirts, an old dress they'd given me to wear the first day I came; there were no pants small enough for him. He'd back up into the corner and hide his face—like this—and peep over his shoulder; he had a squint that way, that made his face so funny. See, it makes you laugh yourself. But his body—my God!—it was blue with weals! And me—I'd put the baby down that'd been left on the doorsteps of the Cruelty, and I'd waltz up to the lady, the nice, patronizing, rich lady, with her handkerchief to her nose and her lorgnette to her eyes—see, like this. I knew just what graft would work her. I knew what she wanted there. I'd learned. So I'd make her a curtsy like this, and in the ploudest sing-song I'd—"

You see it's this way: Lord Harold Gray's bankrupt. He's poor as—as Nancy Olden. Isn't that funny? But he's got the family jewels all right, to have as long as he lives. Nary a one can he sell, though, for after his death they go to the next Lord Gray. So he makes 'em make a living for him, and as they can't go on and exhibit themselves, Lady Gray sports 'em—and draws down $200 a week.

Yep—two hundred.

But do you know it isn't the two hundred dollars a week that makes me envy her till I'm sick; it's that rose diamond. If you could only see it, Mag, you'd sympathize with me, and understand why my fingers just itched for it the first night I saw her come on.

"Pon my soul, Mag, the sight of it blazing on her neck dazzled me so that it shut out all the staring audience that first night, and I even forgot to have stage fright.

"What's doped you, Olden?" Obermuller asked when the curtain went down, and we all hurried to the wings.

I was in the black dress with the white-bibbed apron, and I looked up at him still dazed by the shine of that diamond and my longing for it. You'd almost kill with your own hands for diamond like that, Mag!

"Doped? Why—what didn't I do?" I asked him.

"That's just it," he said, looking at me curiously; but I could feel his disappointment in me. "You didn't do anything—not a blasted thing more than you were told to do. The world's full of supers that can do that."

For just a minute I forgot the damnation.

"Then—it's a mistake? You were wrong and—and I can't be an actress?"

He threw back his head before he answered, puffing a mouthful of smoke

"You see, you don't know it quite all—yet, Mr. Manager!" I spat it out at him, and then walked to the cop, my hands ready for the bracelets.

"But there's one thing I do know!" He's a big fellow but quick on his feet, and in a minute he was up and between me and the cop. "And there isn't a theatrical man in all America that knows it quicker than Fred Obermuller, that can detect it sooner and develop it better. And you've got it, girl, you've got it! Officer, take this for your trouble. I couldn't hold the fellow, after all. Never mind which way he went; I'll call up the office and explain."

He shut the door after the cop, and came back to me. I had fallen into a chair. My knees were weak, and I was trembling all over.

"Have you seen the playlet Charity at the Vaudeville?" he roared at me. I shook my head.

"Well, it's a scene in a foundling asylum. Here's a pass. Go up now and see it. If you hurry you'll get there just in time for that act. Then if you come to me at the office in the morning at ten, I'll give you a chance as one of the Charity girls. Do you want it?"

God, Mag! Do I want it!

DO YOU remember Lady Patronesses' day at the Cruelty, Mag? Remember how the place smells of cleaning ammonia on the bare floors? Remember the black dresses we all wore, and the white aprons with the little bibs, and the oily sweetness of the matron, and how our faces shone and tingled from the soap and the rubbing? Remember it all?

Well, who'd a thought then that Nancy Olden ever would make use of it—on the level, too!

Drop the Cruelty, and tell you about the stage? Why, it's bare boards back there, bare as the Cruelty, but oh, there's something that you don't see, but you feel it—something magic that makes you want to pinch yourself to be sure you're awake. I go round there just doped with it; my face, if you could see it, must look like Molly's kid's when she's telling him fairy stories.

I love it, Mag! I love it!

And what do I do? That's what I was trying to tell you about the Cruelty for. It's in a little act that was made for Lady Gray, that there are four Charity girls on the stage, and I'm one of 'em.

Lady Gray? Why, Mag, how can you ever hope to get on if you don't know who's who? How can you expect me to associate with you if you're so ignorant? Yes—a real Lady, as real as the wife of a Lord can be. Lord Harold Gray's a sure enough Lord, and she's his wife, but—but a chippy, just the same; that's what she is, in spite of the Gray emeralds and that great Gray rose diamond she wears on the tiniest chain around her scraggly neck. Do you know, Mag Monahan, that this Lady Harold Gray was just a chorus girl—and a sweet chorus girl, when she nabbed Lord Harold?

You'd better keep your eye on Nancy Olden, or first thing you know she'll marry the czar of Russia—or Tom Dorgan, poor fellow, when he gets out! . . . Well, just the same, Mag, if that white-faced, scrawny little creature can be a lady, a girl with ten times her brains, and at least half a dozen times her good looks—oh, we're not shy on the stage, Mag, about throwing bouquets at ourselves!

Can she act? Don't be silly, Mag! Can't you see that Obermuller's just hiring her title and playing it in big letters on the bills for all it's worth? She acts the Lady Patroness, come to look at us Charity girls. She comes on, though, looking like a fairy princess. Her dress is just blazing with diamonds. There's the lady's coronet in her hair. Her thin little arms are banded with gold and diamonds, and on her neck—O, Mag, Mag, that rose diamond is the color of rose leaves in a fountain's jet through which the sun is shining. It's long—long as my thumb—I swear it is, Mag—nearly, and it blazes, oh, it blazes—

Well, it blazes dollars into Obermuller's box all right, for the Gray jewels are advertised in the bill with this one at the head of the list, the star of them all.

You see it's this way: Lord Harold Gray's bankrupt. He's poor as—as Nancy Olden. Isn't that funny? But he's got the family jewels all right, to have as long as he lives. Nary a one can he sell, though, for after his death they go to the next Lord Gray. So he makes 'em make a living for him, and as they can't go on and exhibit themselves, Lady Gray sports 'em—and draws down $200 a week.

Yep—two hundred.

But do you know it isn't the two hundred dollars a week that makes me envy her till I'm sick; it's that rose diamond. If you could only see it, Mag, you'd sympathize with me, and understand why my fingers just itched for it the first night I saw her come on.

up at the ceiling, as he did the night he caught me. The gesture itself seemed to remind him of what had made him think in the first place he could make an actress of me. For he laughed down at me, and I saw he remembered.

"Well," he said, "we'll wait and see. . . . I was mistaken, though, sure enough, about one thing that night." I looked up at him.

"You're a darn sight prettier than I thought you were. The gold brick you sold me isn't all—"

He put out his hand to touch my chin. I sidestepped, and he turned laughing to the stage.

But he called after me.

"Is a beauty success going to content you, Olden?"

"Well, we'll wait and see," I drawled back at him in his own throaty bass.

Oh, I was drunk, Mag, drunk with thinking about that diamond! I didn't care even to please Obermuller. I just wanted the feel of that diamond in my hand. I wanted it lying on my own neck—the lovely, cool, shining, rose thing. It's like the sunrise, Mag, that beauty stone. It's just a tiny pool of water blushing. It's—

How to get it! How to get away with it! On what we'd get for that diamond, Tom and I—when his time is up—could live for all our lives and whoop it up besides. We could live in Paris, where great grafters live and grafting pays—where, if you've got wit and £50,000, and happen to be a "darn sight prettier," you can just spin the world around your little finger!

But, do you know, even then I couldn't bear to think of selling the pretty thing? It hurt me to think of anybody having it but just Nance Olden.

But I hadn't got it yet.

Gray has a dressing-room to herself. And on her table—which is a big box, open end down—just where the three-sided big mirror can multiply the jewels and make you want 'em three times as bad, her big russick-leather, silver-mounted box lies open, while she's dressing and undressing. Other times it's locked tight, and his lordship himself has it tight in his right hand, or his lordship's man, Topham, has it just as tight.

How to get that diamond! There was a hard nut for Nance Olden's sharp teeth to crack. I only wanted that—never say I'm greedy, Mag—

Gray could keep all the rest of the things—the pigeon in rubies and pearls, the tiara all in diamonds, the chain of pearls, and the blazing rings, and the waist-trimming all of emeralds and diamond stars. But that diamond, that huge rose diamond, I couldn't, I just couldn't let her have it.

And yet I didn't know the first step to take toward getting it, till Beryl Blackburn helped me out. She's one of the Charities, like me—a tall bleached blonde with a pretty, pale face and gold-gray eyes. And, if you believe her, there's not a man in the audience, afternoon or evening, that isn't dead gone on her.

"Guess who's my latest," she said to me this afternoon, while we four Charities stood in the wings waiting.

"Topham—old Sopham!"

It all got clear to me then in a minute.

"Topham—nothing!" I sneered.

Beryl Bighead, Topham thinks of only one thing—milady's jewel-box. Don't you fool yourself."

"Oh, does he, miss? Well just to prove it, he let me try on the rose diamond last night. There!"

"It's easy to say so, but I don't see the proof. He'd lose his job so quick it'd make his head spin if he did it."

"Not if he did, but if they knew he did. You'll not tell?"

"Not me. Why would I? I don't believe it, and I wouldn't expect anybody else to. I don't believe you could get Topham to budge from his chair in Gray's dressing-room if you'd—" "What'll you bet?"

"I'll bet you the biggest box of chocolate creams at Huyler's."

"Done! I'll send for him to-night, just before Gray and her lord come, and you'll see—"

"How'll I see? Where'll I be?"

"Well, you wait in the little right off Gray's dressing-room at 7:30 to-night and—you might as well bring the creams with you."

Catch on, Mag? At 7:30 in the evening I was waiting; but not in the little hall off Gray's dressing-room. I hadn't gone home at all after the afternoon performance—you know we play at three, and again at 8:30. I had just hidden me away till the rest were gone, and as soon as the coast was clear I got into Gray's dressing-room, pushed aside the chintz curtains of the big box that makes her dressing-table—and waited.
